The Post Library will be open from 1200 hours to 2200 hours, every day, beginning 27 January, 1944.

5. TELEPHONE FACILITIES

When initiating a call, the individual should hang up immediately if the desired number is engaged and no other extension is desired at that time. The practice of "holding the line" when the desired extension or person is not available engages a trunk circuit and prevents its use for other pending calls. Circuit time will not be wasted by holding the line during a search for information.

Long distance calls will be limited to six minutes.
