SUGGESTION BOX:

SUGGESTION: Why doesn't someone reorganize the Enlisted Men council so that there is a better cross representation of the Enlisted Men. USSEI 100 14-1 only recommends that they be appointed by the Unit Commander.

It is suggested that the two (2) men from each squadron be elected, say for a period of six months, by the Enlisted Men of their respective Squadrons.

It is believed that when a man is elected to a position he puts forth more effort than when detailed.

SUGGESTION BOX (Continued)

ANSWER: If you are not looking for the job what are you bitching about? The recommendation of the CG of USMC should be enough. However, the point you have hinted at is understandable because there is no regulation to actually prevent a unit commander from using an election as his means of making an appointment.
