HEADQUARTERS 306TH BOMBARDMENT GROUP (H)
Office of the Operations Officer

(E-6)

A.P.O. 557,
6 July 1944.

SUBJECT: Report of Operations Officer, Mission of 6 July 1944, Noball, France.

TO : Commanding Officer, 306th Bombardment Group (H), A.P.O. 557.

40th "B" Group

1. General Narrative:

a. The "B" Group took off at 0621 hours on Noball mission of 6 July 1944. Assembly of the Group and Combat Wing join-up was accomplished as planned with no difficulties encountered. All Planes were in formation before leaving Mount Farm and control points to the coast were made good.

b. The route to the target area was as briefed but although two runs were made, the target was not identified and bombs were not dropped. Weather over the target was good.

c. The route back was not as planned. The formation left France at Le Cortoy and entered England six miles below Clacton. Base was reached uneventfully and the lead plane landed at 1023 hours.

d. Area fighter support was good and no enemy fighters were seen. Flak was moderate but inaccurate.

2. Aircraft Not Attacking:

a. The "B" Group was made up of 12 A/C plus one on flying spare. No A/C were abortive and the spare returned as briefed. Due to inability to identify the target, it was not attacked and bombs were returned. Briefed target was NoballXI-A-204.

3. Lost Aircraft:

a. No planes were lost.

40th "E" Group

1. General Narrative:

a. Reference is made to report of the "B" Group with the following additions:

(1) The "E" Group followed the planned route to briefed target and bombed visually with good observed results.

(2) The briefed route was followed to base.

HEADQUARTERS EIGHTH AIR FORCE
AAF STATION 101
APO 634

6th July, 1944.

SUBJECT: Preliminary Report on G.A.F. Reaction to Attacks on Kiel, Crossbow Targets and Bridges on the Loire.

TO : Commanding General.

1. E/a activity during today's operations varied considerably. During some periods activity was practically negligible, while at others elements of at least eight Gruppen s/e fighters were airborne. At no time did e/a show any particular desire to attack heavy bombers, and it is probable that in the majority of engagements with allied fighters the latter took the initiative and forced the enemy to fight.

2. There is evidence that e/a, operating in considerable strength, were heading for the battle area on an offensive sortie early this morning. However, they were met by the 56, 78 and 353 Groups in the Paris-Evreux area, and appear to have been so severely disrupted as to be unable to continue on their mission. It seems that this early engagement may have disorganised the enemy's plans as activity during the next few hours was practically negligible.

3. There are no indications of any direct reaction to the morning's heavy bomber attacks on targets in the Pas de Calais. One Gruppe s/e fighters were patrolling in the ~~XXXXXX~~ St. Quentin area before the bombers left the English coast. These e/a were informed of the positions of the incoming bombers and had sighted them by 0832. It was decided, however, not to attack but to remain at a lower altitude. These e/a probably followed the bombers at a safe distance, but it was not until 0841 when P-38's were sighted in the Valenciennes area that e/a took any offensive action, although by this time part of the Gruppe had had to land owing to petrol shortage. As a result of this combat the Gruppe leader claimed two P-38's shot down. Preliminary reports from the 479 Group who were involved in this engagement indicate that only three Me 109's attacked and of these one was shot down for the loss of one P-38. No R/T was intercepted from the five Me 109's attacked by the 55 Group at Laon at 0945 - probably due to their low altitude.

4. 2nd Division bombers attacking Kiel and their escorting fighters report no e/a opposition and there is no evidence that the enemy was assembling any concentration of s/e to oppose this force had it continued on a deeper penetration. It seems that he may have decided that Berlin was not the target as no fighters were headed in that direction. ~~As well as this a force almost three times as large had already assembled in Southern England and was setting out for France. From these two facts the enemy may have assumed that we would not have enough fighters to give adequate support for a deep penetration and so made no preparations for its reception.~~

5. Late afternoon attacks on tactical targets in N.E. France and bridges on the Loire evoked no specific reaction. No mention was made of heavy bombers by e/a or their controls, the only plots passed originating from the Ground Defence Network which reported the 2nd Division bombers as large formations between Argentan and Chartres. Elements of four Gruppen were airborne while the bombers were over enemy territory but little is known of their activity. At least one Gruppe appears to have operated East of Paris and may possibly have been in contact with allied fighters in this area.
