WASHINGTON, May 16—United States Army forces are pressing home their attacks to force the Japanese off Attu Island, in the Aleutians, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox disclosed yesterday, stating the operations were "going very

The suggestion that Gen. Jurgen von Armim, former Nazi commander-in-chief in Africa, might be in England, was made in Africa, might be in England, was made by some sources last night following the report of his arrival on Saturday at Gibraltar. Accompanied by seven other Axis generals—five German and two Italian, captured in North Africa—his Gibraltar arrival was reported in an Algeciras report to Madrid.

The captured Nazi general, according to an Algiers broadcast, boarded an American plane Saturday morning for an unannounced destination. On the plump

The village lies on flat, marshy ground and almost on the beach, while huge, precipitous mountains rise only a few yards from the main road that runs through it. Germany Hit Hard; Swiss Hear Italy's King Has Abdicated

Italians on Verge of Panic as Rome Admits Fleet Is Too Weak to Halt an Invasion; U.S. Fighters Join Assault on Reich

American and British air forces intensified the aerial pounding of the enemy across all of Europe over the weekend, while a nervous and gloomy Italy rushed preparations for an invasion which it expected at any moment. A Swiss report said Italy's King already had abdicated and asked Italy's armies to lay down their arms.

From Britain the USAAF and RAF smashed at numerous targets extending as far north as Kiel, Baltic Sea naval base. The RAF hit Berlin again

From Africa and Malta, planes attacked ports, shipping, industrial plants and land transport in Sicily and southern Italy. Rome, for the first time in the war, heard the thunder of exploding bombs, dropped by Flying Fortresses on a port 30 miles away.

Italy was on the verge of panic as the government warned that the Italian navy was too small to stop an Allied invasion and the people were instructed to leave all roads and an Allied invasion and the people were instructed to leave all roads and transport clear for troop movements. Italy obviously expected little aid from Germany in defending herself.

The possibility of a separate peace with Italy was mentioned in the United States.

U.S. Air Drive Reaches New Peak

The Allied air offensive against the Nazi fortress of Europe exploded this weekend into a full-scale drive by day and night in which American warplanes for the first time played a three-fold part.

1—The Eighth Air Force hurled its first medium bombers into the attack on Nazi military targets across the Channel

Nazi military targets across the Channel and North Sea.

2—The U.S. heavy bombers, striking in far greater force than ever before, smashed at six targets in three consecutive days of bombing.

3—Wave after wave of P47s—the de-structive Thunderbolt fighters—swept against the Luftwaffe, alone and as escorts on Saturday, the white-starred heavies went to Germany in the greatest force yet and struck targets in the northwest including the U-boat yards and dock installations at Emden.

On Saturday night, RAF Mosquitoes bombed Berlin in the Reich capital's 63rd raid since the war began. Other RAF planes, including fighter-bombers, swept the Low Countries, France and western Germany and attacked shipping along the European coast-all without loss.

P47s Out Again

Yesterday, P47 fighters swarmed against the Occupied Countries in two fighter sweeps to touch off again the Nazi sirens whose wailing last Wednesday signalled the start of the latest Allied drive.

The Emden raid, at a cost of six bombers, was made unescorted in the face of strong fighter opposition. A communique said "many" enemy fighters were shot down. Bombing results were described officially as "good," despite unfavorable weather conditions.

It was the third straight day in which the American heavy bombers had broken their own records. In the first of the three consecutive sweeps, on Thursday, Meaulte and St. Omer, 12 or 15 minutes flying time in from the French channel coast, were struck a double blow heaver that a program of the straight from bases.

than any previous U.S. raid from bases in Britain. Three bombers were lost.

The following day, while the medium U.S. bombers made their first appearance the war here over Velsen, Holland, the four-engined craft set up a new mark of intensity in dumping tons of explosives and incendiaries over Courtrai and Antwerp in Belgium and the great German naval base of Kiel, their farthest pene-tration into the Reich. The Kiel raiders went unescorted.

None of the medium bombers were lost: 11 heavies officially were reported

More American Troops Arrive in British Isles

More American troops have arrived in the British Isles, it was announced in London yesterday.

The troop convoy, although not particularly large, was made up of soldiers of various services. A handful of WAACs, including the first detachment of enlisted personnel to reach the ETO, traveled with the convoy.

The Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded to three members of Eighth Air Force bomber crews who stuck to their guns despite wounds, it was announced by Headquarters, ETOUSA.

A secret Italian radio, calling itself "Radio Milan of the Truth," was heard yesterday. It concluded its broadcast by saying: "Throw the Germans out of Italy, Away with the agents of the foreigners."

From New York came word that America believed a separate peace offer to Italy might be the first result of the conferences between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

As the zero hour for invasion drew arer, ticked off by Allied raids across nearer, ticked off by Allied raius across all of Europe, there were increasing signs of unrest and even open revolt from one end of the continent to the other

'Keep Listening'—Algiers

Algiers radio throughout Saturday night kept broadcasting an invasion warning to both the French and the Italian people.

The message to the French instructed them time after time to keep tuned to British, American and Algiers radio sta-tions to hear any directions which might

The message to the Italians said:
"Italians, there is still time, but not very much time. Make up your minds and quickly. Otherwise it will be too late."

Reports from America of a possible "separate peace" offer, said that it probably would call for the same "unconditional surrender" laid down as the only terms for the Axis. But there would be an understanding that if Mussolini and his Fascists were purged, the surrender his Fascists were purged, the surrender conditions would be far lighter for Italy than they will be for Germany and Japan.

Political observers said Mussolini's chief problem is one of timing. If he tosses in the sponge too quickly the Germans might exact a terrible revenge on Italy. If he waits too long the Italian surrender will be worth much less to the Allies and their special treatment of Italy might not give the country as much as she could get earlier.

Invasion precautions were observed yesterday on the coasts of Sicily, Sardinia and Calabria, the toe of Italy. Hundreds of searchlights are being installed along those sections of the coastline, continuous air patrols were being maintained and practice alarms were being given.

Trouble in Berlin

Small but significant signs of trouble were also appearing in Germany itself.

News of the Tunisian defeat caused a number of riots in Berlin and other German cities when police tried to break up crowds which had gathered in front of government buildings, seeking word of brothers, sons and fathers in the Afrika

Following the riots, Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief, hurried back to Germany from the Balkans and began recalling his "administrators" from many points of occupied Europe. There was a clear in-ference that the Gestapo expected to have a job on its hands at home. Nevertheless, King Boris of Bulgaria asked for more Gestapo agents to keep order in the wavering Axis-dominated country

All along the invasion coasts of Europe the Germans were carrying out defense measures. One report said all Hollanders living within 15 miles of the coast had been ordered inand. The same step was reported from the French Riviera several days ago.

The First Army's Sixth Armored Division, which shared the capture of Tunis with the famous "Desert Rats" of the Eighth Army's Seventh Armored Division, was the force that shattered the whole Axis command and organization by blasting through the perilous Hamman Lif position and then cutting across the neck of the Cape Bon peninsula, cutting off the main Axis force to the west.

It was the same sort of a raid as Friday's—aimed at a port where U-boats are built and serviced and where communications funnel

Lady Sarah is Bride Of Lt. E.F. Russell

At St. Margaret's

By Jean Bradnick

Stars and Stripes Navy Writer

Aristocrats rubbed elbows with factory workers when Lady Sarah Consuelo Churchill, 21-year-old daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, became the bride of a U.S. Navy lieutenant, Edwin F. Russell, 28, former Newark, N.J., newspaperman.

The ceremony, which took place Satur-day afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in bombscarred St. Margaret's Chapel, Westminster Abbey, where Sir Walter Raleigh is buried, was witnessed by scores of British and American notables.

British and American notables.

Among those attending the affair were Mrs. Winston Churchill, who was married to the Prime Minister in the same chapel 35 years before; Adm. Harold R. Stark, commander of U.S. Naval Forces in Europe; Maj. Gen. William S. Key, U.S. Army; the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Miguel A. Carcano; Maj. John Churchill, brother of Britain's war leader; Mrs. Duncan Sandys, daughter of the Prime Minister, and a galaxy of socialites from Britain's noble families.

War Workers Present

Mingling with these celebrities were Sally" in a British war factory and others who have served with the Duchess of Marlborough in the kitchen of a British Restaurant, State-owned canteen serving war factory workers near Blenheim Palace, the country estate of the Marlboroughs.

One of these women was Mrs. Irene Stone, wife of a London tire-fitter. During the blitz her family was evacuated to Woodstock, near Blenheim. On many occasions she peeled potatoes and attended to other kitchen duties with the Duchess. She carried with her to the wedding a special invitation from the Duchess.

The bride wore a fitted ivory satin gown with a long tulle veil, which formed a train. She wore a string of pearls and carried a spray of white orchids. The carried a spray of white orchids. The bride was given in marriage by her father, who wore the uniform of a major in the British Army. He is liaison officer between British and U.S. forces.

An honor guard of American sailors and marines and British seamen from Lt Russell's old ship was formed when the bride and groom left the church.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at 5 Belgrave Square, in the house of Henry (Chips) Channon, Chicago-born member of Parliament. The bride cut the wedding cake with a British naval sword. While the wedding guests were at the reception, international relations were being sealed by members of the British-American honor guard at the Dorchester, one of London's most fashionable hotels. The party was planned by Lt. Russell for the enlisted men of the two forces.

Americans in the group were Chief Yeomen Joe St. Onge and Huttie B. Wathen, both of Washington; Bruce Spears, Yeoman, First Class, Ottawa, Kas.; William Shea, Quartermaster, First Class, Worcester, Mass., and two Marines, Pfc Carlton Ebling, Batavia, N. V. and Bie Robert I. Kelly Detroit

Eighth Air Force Team Gains ETO Track Honors

Sweeps Relays, Places 35 Men In 13 Events

Winners Finish 82 Points Ahead of Nearest Competitor

> How They Finished Eighth Air Force 108 4/5 Southern Base Command 26 Western Base Command 12

By G. K. Hodenfield

Flying high, wide and handsome over all competition, the Eighth Air Force track team Saturday completely dominated the ETO championship meet at Chiswick, and walked off the field with a total of 108 4/5 points, 82 more than the nearest competitor, Southern Base Command.

Here's just how completely the airmen grabbed the glory: they won both relays, six individual events, and had four men in a six-way tie for first in another. They had 35 men winning points in the 13 individual events. They had at least two men winning points in every individual event, and made a clean sweep of all five places in the jayelin.

places in the javelin.

And all this they did without the star of their team, Cpl. Richard Bishop, of Saratoga Springs, N.Y. Bishop was taken ill the night before the meet and finished far out of the running in his favorite events, the 220 and 440 yard dashes.

Good Time in 100

Some exceptional and some mediocre performances were turned in during the meet. Cpl. John Murray, of Southern Base Command and Buffalo, N.Y., grabbed the track laurels with a :09.8 victory in the 100-yard dash, barely nosing out Sgt. J. C. Johnson, of the Eighth Air Force and Milledgeville, Ga.

The only other double winner of the afternoon was Sgt. John Benford, of the Eighth Air Force and Mt. Pleasant, Mich. Benford won the 120-yard high hurdles in :16.4 and the 220-yard low hurdles in :28.4.

ETO Track Champions At the Finish

Sgt. Leonard Jeppson, of Edgemont, S.D., running unattached, takes the 220-yard dash in Saturday's Stars and Stripes meet in :24.4, beating out Lt. Robert Button, of Maplewood, N.J. Broad jump champ in action is Cpl. John Murray, of Buffalo, N.Y., who did 21 feet, five and one-quarter inches.

'43 Spotlight From Rookies

Lack of Diamond Recruits Gives Veterans Chance On Diamond

By Grantland Rice

New York Sun Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 16—As a rule at this spot in budding May, the rookies are the ones who get the most headlines. They rule the early notices until something of a morbid nature happens, mostly around May 1, and nature resumes its natural course.

This season is entirely different. There are few, if any, Musials, Reisers or Tex Hughsons on review. Far greater interest is centered in the old timers—those who have known from 15 to 22 years in major league competition who see their chance to hang around a little longer while most of the younger men are at war.

to hang around a little longer while most of the younger men are at war.

The battle of the veterans should be one of the high spots of the new season. Certainly the two major leagues have never known a campaign like the present one in which so many old timers figure to play such leading roles.

Worked to Get in Shape

Here are just a few who are passing on John Cooney, Brooklyn Dodgers, 42, in his 23rd season.

Paul Waner, Dodgers, 40, 21st season.

Bill Dickey, Yankees, 36, 19th season.
Mel Ott, Giants, 38, 19th season.
Paul Derringer, Cubs, 37, 17th season.
Joe Kuhel, White Sox, 37, 20th season.
Whit Wyatt, Dodgers, 35, 16th season.
Lon Warneke, Cubs, 34, 16th season.
Dick Bartell, Giants, 36, 17th season.
Jim Turner, Yankees, 39, 19th season.
And this is only a partial list.
Most of these old timers worked like galley slaves to get in shape. But there is still the question of how long their ageing legs can take them from place to place with any speed and how long their arms can handle their jobs.

Ty Cobb once told me, "After I got under headway. I could run almost as the auck getaway that wrecked me. I found that I'd left that fast start behind. You know what that extra step means in getting to first or in killing a hot hit."

Will Supply Color

It is this extra speed that gives both the Cardinals and the Yankees their edge. Both teams have fast men left, especially Detroit now has first call in young Dick Wakefield.

Wakefield is the Michigan outfielder who cost owner Briggs $50,000 after starring under the folds of the maize and blue. He is only an average fielder, but they are picking him for a possible .350 hitter. This is no Tiger novelty when Detroit recalls Cobb, Sam Bradshaw, Bobby Veach, Harry Heilmann, Charlie Gehringer, Hank Greenberg and Rudy York.

York.

With York and Wakefield there is a chance that the Tigers will finish several notches higher than last year. They have their share of pitching, and two ablebodied runners can make a healthy difference.

For all that, the main feature of the '43 race will be the battle to shine and survive or perish among the old timers, who will supply their full share of color.

Boston Climbs to Third; Giants Win Twice, Go To Sixth

NEW YORK, May 16—Outfielder Gerald Walker, who has been a partici-pant in many of baseball's eccentric incipant in many of baseball's eccentric incidents during his 12-year career in the major leagues, lived a moment yesterday he'll regret for a year, as the Boston Braves blanked the Cincinnati Reds, 1—0.

Cincinnati's Johnny VanderMeer allowed the Braves only two hits, but lost due to Walker's lapse. VanderMeer pitched hitless ball until there was one out in the fifth, when he plunked Johnny McCarthy with a pitch. Charley Workman followed with Boston's first hit—a single to center—and Walker let the ball roll through him, permitting McCarthy to romp home with the game's only run. Nat Andrews racked up his third victory, Nat Andrews racked up his third victory, setting down the Reds with three hits and walking only two. He did not allow a Red runner past second and only two as far as second.

Third Straight for Cooper

It was the second win for the Braves in two days, and hoisted them into third place in the National League. On Friday, the St. Louis Cardinals' chase after the League-leading Dodgers was interrupted by Declard's hometown faith in the least by Boston's hometown finish in the last half of the ninth for a 4—3 win. Chet Ross' triple and Workman's single with two out punched the winning run across to climax a mound duel between Max Lanier, of the Cubs, who gave up eight hits, and Al Javery, who was pasted for

The Cards came back yesterday, how-ever, to trip the Phillies, 6-3. The Red-birds tallied in each of the last five innings. Mort Cooper scattered ten Phillie hits for his third straight victory as the Cards came from behind in the fifth and sixth to tie the score, then tallied the de-ciding run in the seventh when Lou Klein doubled Ray Sanders across. Mort Cooper hit a homer in the ninth and the Cards garnered ten hits as every man in

However the Flock came back with power yesterday as they loosed their biggest single inning outburst, scoring ten runs in the fourth, to trounce the Chicago Cubs, 13—6. Max Macon was credited with his third straight victory, although he was driven out of the box by a sixrun Chicago surge with none out in the sixth. Les Webber blanked the Bruins thereafter, allowing only one hit in the last four innings. The Dodgers bunched five hits and five passes in their big inning, sending Paul Derringer and Ray Prim to the showers. Billy Herman drove in five runs, clearing the bases with a double in the fourth.

First Division

You'll hear more about the "Fighting First" before this war is over; but how it captured all its objectives in southern Tunisia, overcoming elements of three Axis divisions, can now be disclosed.

The report covers only the period between March 17 and April 4, but it shows that the First Division knocked out the Italian Centauro Division, met the challenge of two German Panzer divisions, beat back three determined German attacks and then carried on a sustained and successful offensive.

The First Infantry Division was the first American division to arrive in France in the last war, the first to fire upon the Germans, first to suffer combat casualties.

In Tunisia, the First Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Terry Allen, captured Gafso on March 17 and forced a passage onward to the rocky hills of the El Guettar sector. There, joined by the Ninth Division, it threatened the right flank of the Axis lines and pinned down substantial Axis forces. This in turn contributed to the successful break of the British Eighth Army through the Mareth Line and to the preparation for its next success-April 6-in the Wadi el Akarit area. With the second victory the Allied forces swept northward through Tunisia to final victory,

It is good to be able to name the divisions that are winning new battle honors for the American Army, and we are proud to be able to recite in part the exploits of the First Division. We can > the best that Germany has to offer." But we would like to add what is true of the "Fighting First" is also true of the rest of the American Army.

The Future of France

With all French Africa free and actively supporting the military effort of the United Nations to destroy the common enemy, the question of the future of Euro pean France looms ever larger on the political horizon.

As a result many now ask what will the future of France be like? Will France retain and reinforce her republican form of government, with perhaps a new and more closely knit constitution ? Will France turn to socialism or communism, or will she be ruled by a military dictator ?

We believe no man outside of France. either French or British or American, has the right to decide her future. Only Frenchmen who have lived in France, who have shared her sufferings will know how she feels and what she has learned during the terrible years of occupation. Only such men should have the final right to decide her future.

The brave leaders who are now playing an important part in the battle of freeing France most certainly have a right to say what they would like to see France become; but the future of that nation rests in the hands of the people of France and it must be the voice of the majority that selects future leaders and which dictates future French policy.

We feel that the future of that great nation will rest safe in the hands of the people who make her great. We are also sure the government they select will reflect the idealism of liberty, equality and fraternity, for only a handful of Frenchmen have been contaminated by Nazi ideology.

Exile Says Country Open To Attackers North of Rome

By Robert Richards

United Press London Bureau Italian sources in London declare that the seizure of Sardinia and Corsica for use "as a springboard" for a direct attack on the Italian mainland, cutting the industrial north from the agricultural south, would be a surefire method of knocking Italy quickly from the war.

The foundation of such an attack lies in complete mastery of the sea and skies. Led by hard-hitting paratroops, the Allies could strike the west coast between Pisa and Rome. The rest of the coast, while hilly, offers no serious obstacles. Most important for success is that the attack follow the North African pattern with troops coming in many places and fanning out but always pushing northward.

They emphasized that Rome and the southern section could be easily left for later action. They claimed that southern Italy cut off from industries will "fall from its own weight." The chief objectives would be the nerve centers of Italian war effort, and the industrial centers of Turin, Milan, Trieste and Genoa which turn out machines, war materials, motors and ships.

Fleet From Africa

The London sources pointed out that a huge fleet leaving for such an invasion easily could come from Algiers, Phillipeville, Tunis and Bougie. Paratroops would spearhead the capture of Corsica and Sardinia. Once Corsica was taken, the Allies would have good airfields from which to launch the attack and cover their own ships. They estimated that there were between 30,000 and 50,000 troops in the two islands.

However, the informant pointed out, "The people won't fight. I give you my head on that statement. They are war-weary and ready to quit." The Italian fleet, weak in ships and guns, would be forced to fight near the mainland where it could be assisted by shore batteries.

engaged the enemy.

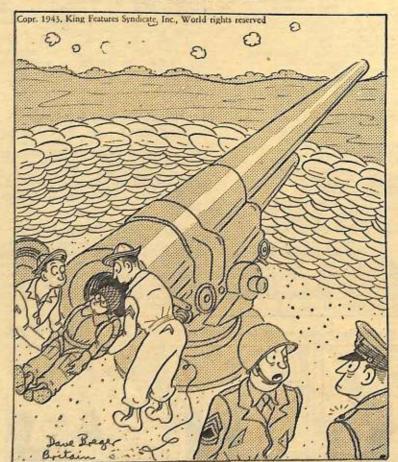

Italy must be cut across the region directly south of Florence. This would be the vital point for crippling the "Orient Express" railway stretching from Sofia through Belgrade, Zagreb, Venice, Milan and Genoa to Paris. Once this line is disrupted, Axis transportation of supplies to southeastern Europe would be seriously hampered, making reinforcement to Yugoslavia and Greece a serious problem.

Triest an Objective

Another vital objective would be the shipyards at Trieste, where most Italian ships are built. Trieste has been reported untouched by Allied raids-possibly because of the anti-Fascist sentiments of the inhabitants. Once these two cities fall, Italy's shipbuilding program will col-

The informant considers that the success of the mission depends on the amount of supplies that get into the country rather than the number of men. He pointed out that Sardinia and Corsica were not only the springboard for the attack but also good cover against an Axis flanking operation from the Spanishowned Balearic Islands, Marseilles or a surprise smash from the Spanish mainland. Fortress of Europe a Fraud, Declares Reporter Who Saw It

NEW YORK, May 16-The gaping | cracks in Hitler's "Fortress Europe," vulnerable to attack at dozens of points, were described in a broadcast here by William L. Shirer, former Berlin correspondent and now a commentator for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

"It was laughable how little we were shown," Shirer declared.

"What are the facts about Hitler's great European fortress? The first fact is that it doesn't exist. The coastline of western Europe, from Petsamo, Finland, to the Spanish frontier, it 9,280 miles long. The border of southern Europe is even longer if you follow the peninsulas and big islands.

"No power in the world could make a fortress of such a long line.

"Secondly, as all wars have proven, any fortress is only as strong as the army defending it. "No good general staff in this war has any confidence in fortresses when it Shirer said that when he was in comes to stopping a first-class army-"To say that Hitler's fortress is a figment of the imagination doesn't mean that certain points along the whole Axis perimeter are not fortified, but there are quite a few soft spots in the long line. "A lot of these soft spots are in the Balkans, where Hitler doesn't depend on fortifications but on numbers of satellite troops he can get to fight for him there.

"The final point about Hitler's so-cailed 'Fortress' is that it contains some 150,000,000 people-most of whom will rise up when we arrive. Such help will be worth several armies."

New Order Will Probably Avert New Tie-Up In Coal Mines

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)-The WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The War Labor Board has ordered soft coalminers and operators to resume bargaining, probably averting thereby a new tieup of the industry when the 15-day truce expires next Tuesday at midnight, it was announced over the weekend.

The board said that agreement should be possible on a number of issues to probe possible on a number of issues to pro-vide relief for miners, other than a straight wage increase, and especially suggested a full six-day week.

The board, in an interim directive order, stated:

"If the miners have a justifiable complaint it might be adjusted by stricter enforcement of price ceilings and the development of an adequate rationing program to meet the miners' special problems. Steps taken to accomplish those results have been taken and others are in progress."

The board criticized the adamant position taken by both sides, and stated:
"With the scheduled demand for 600,000,000 to 630,000,000 tons of coal 600,000,000 to 630,000,000 tons of coal for 1943, the largest in history, plus a growing shortage of miners, it should be possible for miners and operators to undertake collective bargaining directed to the development of a mutually satisfactory plan by which the benefits of the six-day week could be assured for the miners.

If Shark Attacks, Punch Him In the Nose, Pacific Yanks Told

HONOLULU, May 16 (UP)—"Don't be afraid of natives or sharks." That is part of the advice given in the "Castaway's Baedeker to the South Seas," issued to sailors and airmen of the United States Pacific Fleet.

"The bogey that you may find yourself amidst a horde of savages waiting to serve you as the main course for dinner; or the bogey that if you are forced down at sea a shark is sure to amputate your leg—these and all others like them are false," declared the booklet.

"Of the 16 species of shark, only one, the tiger shark, is a serious threat to a man swimming in the water, and your chance of meeting one of them is not great." And if a shark does attack, according to the "Baedeker," just sock him on the nose and he'll go away.

Don't hide from the local inhabitants—seek them out and ask them to help you, is the advice to the sailor or airman stranded on a Pacific island. Polynesians are friendly people. Melanesians are more reserved, but they are all quite decent or use a gun," says the booklet.
